

If Sinclair forces their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary near election day, they should also force these same stations to air a pro-Kerry documentary (e.g., "Up the River"). Otherwise, it is a clear attempt at political manipulation (a contribution in kind) -- using the free public airwaves to do so!

Now you know why me and so many others have been worried about the dangers of media consolidation. I write to urge the FCC to review the Sinclair case promptly and to strengthen, not weaken, media ownership rules.

Thank You. Tim Brezina
